

This new product received its first reward after just the second day at the Orgatec in Cologne when AirPad was the recipient of the AIT Innovation Award.

The architecture magazines "AIT" and "xia intelligent architecture" have awarded the innovation award 'Architecture + Office XXL' for the sixth time this year. The award is aimed at designers and manufacturers of office systems, equipment and furnishings. Important criteria for judgement are functional and design quality, material properties and diversity of application.

The innovation award has been well received and its appeal extends across the different segments of the trades concerned. On this occasion, the jury had to evaluate 53 vastly different products ranging from furniture, materials, floor coverings, lights to office accessories.